

THE HEN AND THE PIG

Adaptation of an Aesop's Fable by P. Ribes, sj.

Unequal Partnerships and contracts may be legalized, but are they just??? for instance:

- Capital and Labor – (Capital would be the Hen, Labor the Pig)
  - Masters and servants.
  - Employers and employees
  - Government officials and citizens.
  - Exploitation of others at all levels.
- Unfair structures and unjust international relationships
- World monetary enforced agreements between developed and undeveloped countries
  - Might is right

during the time of an economical recession, a Hen approached a Pig for a business proposal. She told him: “Hey, what about starting a business partnership? Why not to open an eggs and bacon breakfast parlor in the main street? There will be lots of customers and plenty of profit. I’ll freely supply the eggs; you will freely supply me with bacon”.

The Pig answered: “Can’t you see that this is an unfair partnership? You will have nothing much to lose. You will have to give only what you have, the eggs, but me? I’ll have to give all I am, my entire life!”

“Yes”, The Hen coolly and callously replied, “I see it, but this, does not bother me much, For me this would be just a free business agreement that would bring me lots of money”

Once upon a time a Hen approached a Pig for a business proposal.

She told him “Hey, what about starting a business partnership? Why not to open up an eggs and bacon breakfast parlor in the main street? There will be lots of customers and plenty of profit. I’ll supply the eggs; you will supply me with bacon”.

The Pig answered: “Can’t you see that this is an unfair partnership? You will have nothing much to lose. You will have to give only what you have, the eggs, but me? I’ll have to give all I am, my entire life!”

“Yes”, The Hen coolly and callously replied, “I see it, but this does not bother me much, I am sure that the business would bring me lots of money”
