

CLEAN YOUR WINDOW PANES

Intent of the Story:

- Don't criticize others .You may be worse than them.
- Before you pass judgment, - if at all you have to – put your house in order
- To see others in the proper light, first clean the glasses of your mind
- A good judgment demands an unbiased and objective examination
- Jesus said: “How you can see the spec in others’ eyes, when you can’t see the bean in your own eyes?”
- If you do not want to err, do not judge.
- Judge not and you will not be judged”

The Story

A young couple Leo and Mary moved to a new residence. Their living room was graced with big broad glass window panes

As they sat for lunch Mary remarked; Look at the opposite building. This family in front of our balcony has hung their wash to dry. See how dirty it looks.

They don't seem to know how to wash their linen white. I wonder what sort of soap they use. It must be the cheapest one. They seem to be very sloppy

Every time their neighbors kept their wash to dry, Mary used to pass similar disparaging remarks.

One day, with surprise, Mary said to Leo: Look, at last they seem to have learned how to wash their linen. How clean and bright it looks today.

Leo, casually, with a mischievous smile, remarked: “Yes, darling, you are quite right. You know, today morning, I fancied cleaning our glass window panes!
